Oct. 23, 2018 12:25 pm ET Order Reprints Print Article Joshua Trujillo, courtesy of Starbucks WASHINGTON (AP) — Coffee drinkers in the nation's capital can now order that tall pumpkin spice iced skim latte in sign language. Starbucks has opened its first U.S. "signing store" to better serve hard of hearing customers. The store in Washington is just blocks from Gallaudet University, one of the nation's oldest universities serving deaf and hard of hearing students. Marlee Matlin, the only deaf actor to win an Academy Award, posted an Instagram video of herself ordering a drink early Tuesday. "The sign for the week is COFFEE," she wrote. Starbucks announced in July that it would hire 20 to 25 deaf or hard of hearing baristas to work at the store. The store is modeled after a similar Starbucks signing store which opened in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia in 2016. Updated: 12/30/2021 by Computer Hope This page contains a list of services used to store digital photos online, share photos with friends and family, create prints, and more. There are also hundreds of other online services that allow you to store your pictures and photos online. For a list of some of these services, see: Where to post my pictures, movies, or other files online for free. Many of these services in the sections below offer a free location for you to upload your digital pictures and share them with friends. If you want hard copies or prints of your pictures, you may want to view the prices for prints and try printing a few before committing to one service. Shutterfly Shutterfly is an excellent destination for users who want to store, share, and print their photos. Shutterfly allows you to upload as many pictures as you want, touch up with their software, choose various sizes, and choose to print to books, mouse pads, CDs, etc. Visit Shutterfly Snapfish Another excellent online service, Snapfish is a Hewlett Packard company that allows users to store and share their photos online. They also offer a free software program to manipulate photos, and the option to order prints. Visit Snapfish Flickr As the most popular community for posting and sharing your digital pictures, Flickr is an excellent location to store and share your photos for free. Once posted, you and others you give rights to can also print and customize products such as cards, books, calendars, stamps, and other objects with your pictures. Visit Flickr dotPhoto.com Another great site and service that enables you to post, store, share, and print your digital photos. Visit dotPhoto.com Google Photos One convenient and cross-platform method for storing and sharing content is Google Photos. Since most people have a Google account for services like Gmail and YouTube, it's likely your contacts will already have a way to access Google Photos. Using Google Photos, you can create collaborative albums with multiple users, which is a streamlined method for sharing travel or event photos from every user in the group. Visit Google Photos Local solutions Many local retailers have online solutions that work with services previously mentioned allowing you to upload your digital photos and pick them up at a local store. Following is a list of some of these services. Walmart Like many of the services above, Walmart allows users unlimited storage of their digital photos providing they order a minimum of one print a year. Walmart is unique in that it allows users to upload or e-mail their digital photos and pick them up the same day. You can also choose to print your photos on mousepads, t-shirts, books, playing cards, and more. Visit Walmart photo Target Target has teamed up with Flickr, Shutterfly, and Kodak Gallery to have photos sent to local Target stores for pickup, often in a few hours. Visit Target photo Other retail stores All small and large companies that handle film or pictures are now capable of reading your digital pictures and processing them. Many companies have booths or customer service representatives that help retrieve the pictures from your digital cameras, flash cards, or CDs for printing. There are several ways to find the closest AT&T store locations. These ways include using the AT&T website and searching through online and paper directories. If you can't find a store nearby, there are ways to manage your account online so you don't have to visit an AT&T store.AT&T Store Locator ToolWhen you're looking for AT&T store locations and hours, the fastest way to find the information is by going to the AT&T website and letting it use your location to find the closest stores. Then, when you select the closest store from the results, you can click on its name and the results bring up a page about that store. The store pages show the hours of each store and a map to help you find it if you're unfamiliar with its location. The page also shows you the address in written form and it has the store's phone number in case you want to call ahead or just need a quick answer to a question.Using a Phone Book to Find an AT&T StoreIf you want to try an old-school technique to find AT&T mobile store locations, get out your printed paper phone book and look in the white pages under the letter A. Scroll through the listings until you find AT&T. Or, turn to the business listings in the back of the phone directory. They'll typically be printed on yellow paper. AT&T may be listed under several headings, so check Mobile Phones, Cellular Phones and Internet Providers. Because it starts with the letter A, it should be at or near the top of the list under one or all of these headings.Online Directories for AT&T Store ListingsOnline directories are the modern version of the classic phone book. To use one, look up the AT&T service you need. For example, if you need help with your cellular phone, you may want to look up AT&T tech support. Then, add your zip code or city and state before clicking the search button to find the nearest AT&T store.Services Through the AT&T Mobile AppFor regular account maintenance, such as paying your bill and managing your account access, AT&T provides the MyATT app. The app can be downloaded through the company website, or you can text your request to the company and a download link will be sent to your device.Online Account Services From AT&TAT&T online services let you handle many of the functions a store may otherwise have to help with, saving you the time and effort of visiting a brick and mortar shop. You can view your bill and make payments through the website. You can also report slow internet service and manage your family's data usage. MORE FROM QUESTIONSANSWERED.NET
